Lindsay is a senior finance strategist with the Sunrise Project. His work includes coordinating the Unfriend Coal / Insure Our Future network in the EU. Lindsay has campaigned on environment and community issues for around 30 years.

Lindsay is from Scotland and moved to live in Sweden in 2015. In the last few years he worked with the Stockholm based Fisheries Secretariat on sustainable fisheries policy in the Baltic and EU. Prior to that he was for a number of years development director of a vibrant, community led, multicultural centre in Glasgow. For ten years prior to that was a senior campaigner with Greenpeace International leading global corporate campaigning on genetic engineering and sustainable agriculture and with Greenpeace Nordic where he variously led the oceans campaign, volunteer department and Arctic campaign development.

Lindsay's background includes working with GreenCity Wholefoods, a workers cooperative which is a large wholesalers of vegetarian, organic and fair trade produce in Scotland and coordinating the UK Wholefood trade genetic food alert food campaign. In his youth Lindsay opened a wholefood shop and catering business, set-up Greenpeace volunteer groups, participated in local Scottish community campaigns against toxic waste dumping and in UK and EU campaigns highlighting the dangers of climate change.
