

My name Sophia Axelsson, I am a 19 year old climate striker with FridaysForFuture from Sweden. I joined the climate movement in december 2018, then I was studying marine biology at high school level, now I am studying Biology and Earth science at Stockholm University. I strike because there is knowledge about the climate crisis, but the people in power across the world are ignoring it and not acting, so I am sacrificing my studies that are important to me to put pressure on these world politicians to act, not only for my future, but the future of the coming generations and all other organisms living right now on earth.
